Know what you want, work hard on how to get it and then get what you desire. Explain the motivation, power and efficiency of the statement in reaching a goal in life.

The statement "Know what you want, work hard on how to get it, and then get what you desire" is a powerful motivation tool because it is simple, straightforward, and actionable. It reminds us that we have the power to achieve our goals, no matter how big or small they may seem.

The motivation to work hard comes from knowing what we want and why we want it. When we have a clear goal in mind, we are more likely to stay motivated and focused on our work. We are also more likely to persevere through challenges and setbacks.

The power of the statement comes from the fact that it puts the control in our own hands. We are responsible for defining our own goals and creating a plan to achieve them. We are also responsible for putting in the hard work and dedication necessary to succeed.

The efficiency of the statement comes from its focus on results. It does not waste time on unnecessary fluff or jargon. It simply states the three steps necessary to achieve our goals: know what we want, work hard to get it, and then get it.

Here are some examples of how the statement "Know what you want, work hard on how to get it, and then get what you desire" can be used to reach a goal in life:

- A student who wants to get into a top university will need to know what their target universities are and what their admissions requirements are. They will then need to work hard on their grades, extracurricular activities, and standardized test scores. Once they have done all of this, they will be well on their way to achieving their goal.

- A young professional who wants to get promoted will need to know what their company's criteria for promotion are. They will then need to work hard to exceed expectations in their current role and develop new skills and knowledge. Once they have done all of this, they will be in a strong position to be promoted.
- An entrepreneur who wants to start a successful business will need to know what their target market is and what their needs and wants are. They will then need to develop a business plan and work hard to implement it. Once they have done all of this, they will be well on their way to building a successful business.

The statement "Know what you want, work hard on how to get it, and then get what you desire" is a powerful and efficient motivation tool that can be used to achieve any goal in life. When we know what we want and we are willing to work hard for it, anything is possible.
